

Mystic Elixirs and Potions cocktail menu to launch at St Pancras Renaissance Hotel London

Pick your poison: Sorcerers at the St Pancras Renaissance Hotel London have conjured up an Elixirs and Potions cocktail menu to charm witches and wizards, inspired by the 20th anniversary of the publishing of Harry Potter and The Philosopher's Stone, as well as the hotel's gothic architecture and the mystery within the local area, King's Cross.

Launching on Monday 9th October, guests can discover the range of tinctures, filled with trickery and surprises, in The Booking Office Bar & Restaurant, the original ticket hall that now serves as the hotel's atmospheric bar and restaurant. Served inside a medicine bottle, the Camouflage Coupette will help wish away the day's stresses, combining a heady mix of pick-me-ups including gin, Cointreau, absinthe and lemon juice, and will stupefy as the solution changes hue. Tee-Hee, inspired by the typical prohibition libation of the Sazerac and infused with N₂O, will put a smile on diners' faces.

The Elixir of Love, a dazzling sharing punch presented inside a cauldron, combines amaretto, Chambord, vodka and lemon juice, and emits aromas of essential oils unique to the guests' preferred taste in an enchanting display. The Minty Toad For The Road, a wizarding take on the after dinner mint, infuses a hit of peppermint liqueur inside a rich dark chocolate frog.

Witches and wizards-in-training are not forgotten with the range of mocktails on offer. The Lemon Bomb, fiery in both taste and sight, will enchant and amaze children, whilst the Butterscotch Brew, a tankard brimming with salted caramel, butterscotch and bubbles, is the perfect concoction for the sweet-toothed.

With its high ceilings, neo-gothic architecture and old church arches, The Booking Office provides an ethereal backdrop adding to the menu's magic. The historic hotel itself can be spied in the Harry Potter films, as Potter's car whizzes over the hotel's roof in Harry Potter and the Chamber of Secrets, whilst the grand entrance can be seen in Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows Part 2.

The hotel's location in King's Cross is bursting with the supernatural too. Perched between King's Cross station, known by Potter fans as the gateway to The Hogwarts Express via platform 9 $\frac{3}{4}$, and The British Library, set to showcase Harry Potter: A History Of Magic exhibition, the area is ideal for magical explorers.

The Elixirs and Potions cocktail menu will be available from Monday 9th October at The Booking Office at St Pancras Renaissance Hotel London.
